NATIONAL LEAGUE BASEBALL GROUNDS, Chicago, Oct. 12.—Chicago went up against Detroit in the third game of the world's championship series here this afternoon. It looked no good from a Chicago standpoint that Captain Chance, the leader of the World's Champions, declared that his team would win to-day and to-morrow, and again land the big pennant in four straight games.

Where there was any betting at all the backers of the Cubs were offering even money that the Tigers would not win a game of the series, and there were few open to call them.

Detroit Shakeup Rumored.

It leaked out of the Detroit camp that Manager Jennings in a last desperate effort to put new life in the bearings of Chicago's machine would shake up his batting order for to-day's battle. Downs is the weak hitter. His fielding has been as good as the standard set up by the Tiger infield in the series so far, but his hitting is poor. Also, with the lineup in its present form it makes a weak fielder out of Schaefer, who plays a good base with elegance and skill of the lightsome hippopotamus.

Schaefer was to be moved over to his old position at second base, where he is a really valuable man, and old "Cap" Bill Coughlin will take up his old position at the hard corner.

Big Odds on the Cubs.

The Cubs' rooters were offering all sorts of odds before the game that Chicago would win, regardless of pitchers. Jennings had George Mullin slated for the leading role in the third disaster. Mullin bothered the Cubs in the series last Fall, but the rooters here don't think he is game, so the betting was against him with freedom and confidence.

When the crowd began to move toward the park hours before the combat there were indications that there would be an improvement in the attendance for which week hitter. His fielding has been so good is largely responsible for the fact that the attendance has not been anywhere near what it should have been.

Chicago Fans Blame Murphy.

In Detroit they did all in their power to get the crowd out, but the Detroiters like the builders and watch them work the ma- alongside Joy of a hungry tramp gloating over a full dinner pail. Here the fans are willing to pay money for good baseball, but Mr. Murphy doesn't think it good for him if he can possible.

Hundreds of men who stood in line for hours on the two days that the tickets were on sale finally gave it up in wrath and disgust when they were told as they reached the window that all of the reserved seats had been sold. It made them feel a lot better, as was easy imagine, to find out that hotels had blocks of several hundred seats on hand and were doing a speculators' prices, and it was also soothing to see the fans hanging around the "L" station and the gate hand with speculators with both hands full of tickets.

Of course, nobody thinks that a good hot sport like Murphy will be standing in with the speculators, but it looks bad, just the same.

Tigers After Revenge.

The Tigers were a trifle downcast but were determined to get revenge this afternoon.

"We don't care who the Cubs pitch this afternoon," said Jennings, but Evers," declared Manager Jennings. "That home run smash of Tinker's cost us the game. Just as we were under the impression that the hit was only good for two bases. I don't know yet who I will send in this afternoon. It will probably be Summers, though Mullin may be used.

"Then, again, if Killian warms up right he may go to the slab, while Willetz is another possibility. We've lost the first two games, but there are five more to play and we will get four of them." Then Jennings rushed off to Jolly along his players.

DETAILS OF DETROIT-CHICAGO GAME.

FIRST—McIntyre was out Evers to Chance. O'Leary safe on Steinfeldt's fumble. Crawford dumped one in front of the plate and stood still while Kling threw him out to Chance. O'Leary took second. Cobb walked to first. O'Leary scoring. Rossman hitting Steinfeldt and was out at first. ONE RUN.

Sheckard struck out. McIntyre caught Evers's high foul. Schulte singled. He tried to steal, but Tomas's throw to O'Leary nailed him. NO RUNS.

STRIKE CONFERENCE TO OPEN SHOE FACTORIES

NEGOTIATIONS MADE FOR "SATISFACTORY SETTLEMENT"; CAUNT NOT INCLUDED.

LYNN, Oct. 12.—Negotiations were completed to-day at a meeting between several of the shoe manufacturers and the representatives of the striking lasters by which it is believed more than two-thirds of the strikers and the shoe workers who have been idle on account of the trouble will return to work at once. At the meeting J. Henry Watson, senior member of the Watson Shoe Company, introduced the following resolution:

"Resolved, that we stand ready at all times to deal fairly with our employes. No grievances exist between us and the Lasters' Union, and we believe that the interests of the city, the employes and the manufacturers demand that every effort be made to bring about a satisfactory condition of affairs.

Seek Peaceful Settlement.

"Resolved, that we desire that the lasters return to work in our factories, and we hereby agree to continue satisfactory arrangements with them and to do everything to bring about a peaceful settlement between the Lynn manufacturers and the Lasters' Union."

The resolutions were debated at length. Business Agents Michael Tracy and Charles Whidden of the Lasters' Union assured the manufacturers that if 50 per cent. of the bosses signed it they would send the men back to work in every factory agreeing to the resolution.

Some of the signatures at once affixed were the Watson Shoe Company, Joseph F. Melanson & Bro., Winslow, Williams & Co., C. E. Emerson, Allen Foster, Willett, Peg, A. E. Gloyd Shoe Company, Potter Shoe Company, Wallace Shoe Company, Wentworth Shoe Company, J. R. Thomas & Parr, Benjamin H. Newhall and Lovejoy & Sargent.

Committee Gets Signatures.

A committee was named consisting of Mayor Thomas F. Porter, President R. F. Bauer of the Chamber of Commerce and George B. Grant, to go among the manufacturers and get as many as possible to sign the agreement.

Mayor Porter said:

"We have to-day accomplished the most encouraging results so far and the indications now all point to a quick return to work of two-thirds of the strikers."

If the optimistic hopes of the lasters and the friendly manufacturers are realized the strike will centre about the factory of Joseph Caunt, where it started.

The men have little hope of getting Caunt's original allies to sign the agreement. They are F. J. Harney, E. Little, Jenness & Thompson and A. E. Creighton & Co. These five firms employ about 500 lasters or one-third of the number on strike. It is estimated that between 15,000 and 18,000 other shoe workers are idle because of the strike of the lasters and a proportionate number of them hope to return to work.

News of the partial settlement the cause of much rejoicing in the city.

Strikers on Parade.

In the greatest labor demonstration ever seen here, ten thousand shoe factory employes out of work as the result of the lasters' strike, to-day marched, cheering, through the principal streets, headed by Marsh's Band, and all carrying banners.

The congestion in the streets was so great that all traffic was blocked for an hour.

About 400 of the paraders carried red flags. On the banners carried at the head of the line were the inscriptions:

"THE OUTCOME OF THE EXCESSIVE GREED OF ONE FIRM."

"NO NATIONALITIES HERE; WE ARE ALL BROTHERS."

The greatest enthusiasm prevailed among the marchers, inspired both by their feeling that their cause was a just one and by the strains of martial music.

The route of the parade, starting at strike headquarters in Andrew street, was through Market and Broad, in the heart of the closed factories, Sibley and Blake streets and back to headquarters.

Will Stand by Lasters.

The lasters' received assurance this morning from the Edgeworkers, Stitchers and Knights of Labor Cutters' Unions that they will not only give them financial support, but will not allow their members to work in the non-signing factories with non-union lasters. It is estimated that this will affect 300 edgeworkers, 1,500 stitchers, mostly women, and 1,700 cutters.

With these accessions the strikers feel they have the situation well in hand.

INJUNCTION ASKED AGAINST NEW CHARTER

HAVERHILL, Oct. 12.—The city charter adopted at the special election a week ago has been declared unconstitutional by its opponents, and the question will be determined by the Supreme Court.

Petitions for writ of mandamus and certiorari were filed at Salem, the former in order to bring the matter to the courts at once, and the latter on allegation of the unconstitutionality of depriving citizens of the city of Haverhill of the right granted all other citizens of the Commonwealth to be elected to public offices.

EUROPEAN SITUATION CRITICAL, BUT POWERS STRIVE FOR PEACE.

BUDAPEST, Oct. 12.—The Austrian Consulate at Antivari, Montenegro, was to-day attacked by a mob, which tore the Austrian coat of arms from the door and burned it in the street and then sacked the building. Two Austrian warships are now on the way to the scene of the outbreak.

Authorities rescued the attaches of the Consulate.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—A Vienna correspondent says that news has been received there from Belgrade to the effect that the first line of the Servian army is under arms, that ammunition trains are passing over the railroads and that volunteers who were armed on Studay are being drilled with the regulars.

Special Cable to Boston American.

BELGRADE, Oct. 12.—The national assembly, in extraordinary session to-day, voted $3,000,000 as a military appropriation and the following resolution was unanimously passed:

"The Skupschtina, after hearing the explanations of the government and the steps taken by it, expects vigorous activity will be displayed for the protection of the nation's threatened interests. With this object in view the national assembly will give the government its most hearty support and co-operation."

The speech was reported to the assembly and many deputies declared it was a grave error for the Crown Prince to speak in such a way at such a dangerous time.

EARL GREY SAYS AUSTRIA WILL NEVER RETREAT

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The British Cabinet met to-day to hear the report of Minister Grey, the Foreign Secretary, who has been having numerous conferences with the Russian Foreign Minister, Mr. Iwolsky.

Minister Grey told the Cabinet that it was hopeless to expect Austria to agree to permanent surrender of Bosnia and Herzegovina; that he was hopeful that England, France and Russia could induce Austria to agree to a plan of doing in a slightly different form what has already been accomplished. He confessed that the situation is still precarious.

ITALIAN FLEET ORDERED READY FOR DASH TO WAR

Included among the many new contestants whose names were published in the BOSTON AMERICAN yesterday are more than a dozen Sunday school teachers—both men and women—who promise to give the leaders a sharp fight for first place in their respective districts. Also it is reported from several districts that votes are being stored in mammoth bundles for "dark horses" who will be entered almost any day from now on.

There is still plenty of time for teachers to enter the contest. The contestants are just beginning to "warm up" for the battle, and the vote of any contestant to date might easily be overcome.

Teachers are eligible to enter in the district in which their Sunday schools ARE LOCATED; the number is NOT limited in any district to any one number.

Ballots should be bundled into lots of 100 each.

Every ballot should be filled out.

Vote early and often!

FAIR DIVORCEE'S FRIENDS PAINT RIVAL'S HOME RED

SKULL AND BONES DECORATE RAUSKOLB HOUSE WHILE HE IS ON 2D HONEYMOON.

Exceedingly angry over the damage done by a band of men who, Saturday night, smeared her home with red paint depicting skull and bones, and did other damage about the premises, Mrs. John R. Rauskolb, of No. 42 Court street, Medford, declared to-day that her son, Frederick W. Rauskolb, would spend every dollar of his fortune, if necessary, to punish the culprits.

Rauskolb secured a divorce from his first wife six months ago and when the decree became absolute married Miss Fannie A. Jepson of No. 23 Park street, Medford. The first Mrs. Rauskolb has many friends in the historic old city on the Mystic, and it is said that the damage done to Rauskolb's property is a sign of sympathy for his first wife.

Some time Saturday night unknown persons splashed red paint on the front and sides of the house, on the piazza roof and even drew a red skull and cross-bones between the parlor windows. They tipped over potted plants, demolished the garden trellis and carried off blinds from first and second-story windows. The place looks as though a cyclone, with red paint trimmings, had hit it.

Rauskolb is a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, a supreme trustee of the United Order of the Golden Cross, formerly commodore of the South Boston Yacht Club and a well-known manufacturer of gold leaf.

His second marriage took place Saturday noon at the parish house of the First Unitarian Church. The Rev. Henry C. Delong officiated and only the immediate families of the bride and bridegroom were present.

The midnight marauders lost no time after Rauskolb and his second wife had gone on their honeymoon. They worked so quietly that Rauskolb's mother, Mrs. John J. Rauskolb, did not hear them, though she was in her son's house at the time.

She says that the guilty people will be punished. The police are trying to trace the perpetrators of the mischief, but with little success so far.

It is reported that members of some of the best-known families in this quiet residential district were concerned in the matter.

LABOR CHIEF SWEET DENOUNCES INJUNCTION

A. F. OF L. PRESIDENT AT LOWELL MEETING AROUSES ENTHUSIASM.

Special to the Boston American.

LOWELL, Oct. 12—Denunciation of the unrestricted use of the injunction and of the Sherman anti-trust law, as twin foes of labor organizations, formed one of the keynotes of the stirring address of President Phillip H. Sweet of Boston to the twenty-third annual convention of the State Branch, A. F. of L., in session at Associates Hall here to-day.

The attendance also one of the largest in the history of the organization, as there were delegates present from about 250 locals and 29 central bodies. The greatest enthusiasm prevailed among the delegates during the reading of Mr. Sweet's speech.

A rousing greeting was extended to Secretary-Treasurer Dennis D. Driscoll of Boston, whose attendance upon the convention was greatly marked his first resumption of active work since he was Shot in the head by the machine Steele in Governor Guild's office last December.

Tribute to Driscoll.

The assassin's bullet proved fatal to Edward Cohen, president of the State Branch, and Mr. Sweet was appointed to fill his office.

President Sweet, in his address, paid a high tribute to both Mr. Cohen and Mr. Driscoll, stressing his regret that the organization had been deprived of the services of the former forever and of the latter for nearly a year.

He congratulated the delegates that Mr. Driscoll was again able to be with them. He thanked all who had contributed to the $10,000 Cohen-Driscoll fund, including Khrone, Perkins & Co., who acted as custodians and agents. Mr. Sweet also extended the gratitude of the union to Governor Guild for his sympathy and aid to the organization at the time of the shooting.

Mr. Sweet said, referring to injunctions and the Sherman law:

"Injunctions and the Sherman anti-trust law have become twin weapons of attack on trade unions, and members of the trade unions of our State and country. Through the unrestricted issuance of injunctions, any judge can prohibit trade unions and members of such from the exercise of rights guaranteed to them by the constitution of both State and nation. The issuance of the injunction throws the whole weight of the influence and power of the judiciary in favor of the unfair employer and against the workmen, and as far as possible endeavors to strangle the efforts of members of trade unions to obtain and maintain fair conditions of labor.

"No other organization or class of citizens has been subjected to such treatment by the courts, hence we enter our most emphatic protest against such discriminations, and will not only the right but the duty of the trade unions of our State and country, and of every member of those organizations, to use every effort within the law to take away the power of judges to issue injunctions as restricted as is permitted the issuance of an injunction in a case, where, if a labor difficulty were not involved, an injunction would not be issued.

Injury to Workman.

"And while we are bending every energy to the restriction of injunctions, we must not forget the Sherman anti-trust law. By a ruling of the Supreme Court not a penny of the funds or bodies or of any of the individual members thereof are safe from the grasp of the unfair employer. The decision of the Supreme Court in the battery case makes it possible for the unscrupulous employer to so attack our funds as to almost amount to confiscation."

Acting Secretary Joyce said in his report: "I say to the trade unionists gathered here that we must keep our men of the State House, committing with every member of the Legislature, both House and Senate, or that they cannot say that they were not requested to vote in our interest.

"I recommend and urge that this convention take some action so that the unions affiliated may at least subscribe the amount of $3 each, that a fund may be created so that the Executive Council may appoint men to represent the State Branch as its legislative agent from January to June."

One Woman Delegate.

The delegates were called to order by State President Sweet. The only woman delegate present to-day is Miss Anna T. Bowers, who represents the Cigar Strippers' Union of Boston.

President Joseph F. Convery of Lowell Trades and Labor Council welcomed the delegates on behalf of Lowell labor unions, and Mayor Frederick W. Farnham followed with words of greeting for the city.

After the annual reports of President Sweet and Acting Secretary-Treasurer Joyce the convention adjourned to 2 p. m.

Resolutions endorsing the Lynn shoe strike are to be put before the convention for approval.

OPEN TRIAL OF SICILIANS ON DEATH CHARGE

Jury Impanelled to Hear Evidence on Killing of Peter Needham.

Charged with murder in the second degree in causing the death of Peter Needham on the night of August 15, six Sicilian fishermen were put on trial in the Superior Criminal Court to-day before Judge Scheidell. The defendants are Guiseppe Tardenelli, Antonio Orlando, Cesare Garmandeo, Pietro Di Pace, Rosario Tuorniino and Guiseppe Zengari. The first three men were represented by Charles Allen and Fred B. Sawin, the next two by James F. Sweeney and Zengari by John P. Feeney. Assistant District Attorney F. W. McGetrick appeared for the government.

The charge against the prisoners grew out of a fight that a number of Sicilian fishermen had on Atlantic avenue with some of the employes of the Union Freight Company. As a result of the battle Needham was killed and Thomas Moss, a switchman, and Thomas Tuffy, a teamster, and stabbed. Needham lived in South Boston, Moss's home is at No. 70 Chatham street, Lowell, and Tuffey's home is on Winthrop street, Roxbury. The defendants all come from the North End.

After a lengthy conference between counsel as to just how the case should be tried, the impanelling of a jury began.

Denis P. Burns was appointed foreman of the jury. After lunch the jury spent the greater part of the afternoon in looking over the scene of the attack.

'BILL' TURTLE SUED FOR $45 SUIT, DEFAULTS

Fails to Answer in Action Brought by Macullar-Parker Company.

Former Representative William Turtle of Pittsfield has been sued by the Macullar Parker Company of Boston for $45 and interest on that amount since September 1, 1907, because the clothing concern claimed that the State House full dress suit relations did not pay them for a suit of clothes.

The suit was filed in June, and in July Turtle filed an answer in denial of the plaintiff's claims. The case was set for Friday last in the jury waived session of the Superior Court, and when it was called before Judge George R. Sanderson, Turtle, who was entered to appear in his own defence did not put in an appearance. Attorney William G. Waite of the Equitable building was the Macullar Parker lawyer, and he said:

"Mr. Turtle defaulted by not putting in an appearance, and the default goes to judgment on the first Monday in November, and the execution may then be issued. Unless Turtle pays he may then be cited into the poor debtors court. I received a telephone message from him recently asking for delay in the court proceedings. He said he had been ill, but I declined to agree to any continuance. He still owes for the suit of clothes."

Treasurer Weston of the Macullar Parker Company said:

"The bill which Mr. Turtle owes us has run over a year, and we brought suit because he showed no inclination to pay.

Turtle served several terms in the House, and failed to get the Republican nomination last year. This Fall he has been nominated for the State Senate in one of the Berkshire districts.

FIREBUG HELD IN ARSON PLOT

SHUN DRINKING MEN, COUNSELS GIRL IN COURT

Testifies Against J. T. Clark Who Shot Four Times at Her.

PRISONER HELD IN $3,000

Some very good advice to young girls was given in the Charlestown Police Court to-day by Miss Frances Burke, a pretty sixteen-year-old worker in a spice factory, who appeared as a witness against John Leslie Clark, the eighteen-year-old youth who fired four shots at her Saturday morning while she was at work.

"If girls know what is good for them they'll have nothing to do with men who drink," said Miss Burke as she testified. Encouraged by Judge Henry M. Bragg, she told all about her experiences while going with young Clark.

"I went with him time after time," she said, "and told him I'd quit him if he did not stop drinking. I could not get rid of him. A week ago he took me to a dance and though he caused more than himself he became wild with jealousy when I danced with another.

"A man may be the very best sort of a fellow when he is sober but you never can tell what some of them will do when they get a few drinks. Girls ought to leave them alone. I tried hard to avoid him.

"I shall never forget the feeling that came over me when he shot at me. It was terrible. I did not think he'd go so far. I'll try and shield him for his mother's sake but I am done with him."

Young Clark insisted on cross-examining the witnesses, including Miss Burke. Most of his questions were unimportant. He was held for the Grand Jury in $3,000 bail.

Clark has been for times arrested, once for throwing a crucial into a crowded street car, once for carrying a loaded revolver, once for drunkenness when he got off with a fine and a second time for intoxication when he was sentenced for fifteen days. His father and mother were in court today.

Pawnbrokers testified to the sale of the revolver and loaded cartridges to the young man on the morning of the shooting.

MOBS LYNCH THREE NEGROES IN THE SOUTH

LULA, Miss., Oct. 12.—In the presence of city officials, police, several men, women and children, a mob dragged two negroes, Joe and Frank Davis, brothers, to convenient limbs near the depot and strung them up until they were dead.

The negroes were accused of shooting Conductor J. C. Kendall, who was in charge of a special train on the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley Railroad, which was carrying several hundred negroes to listen to a speech by Booker T. Washington.

A third negro, wanted for helping the brothers, is being hunted by dogs and a posse of men.

SPENCER ONLY FRIEND OF MRS. VANDERBILT

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—With the arrival on the steamship Rotterdam to-day of William Spencer, the Philadelphia and Newport society man, there was another well-defined rumor that Mr. Spencer would soon wed Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt, who was divorced only a short time ago from Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt. Mr. Spencer denied his reports in rather a remarkable manner.

"It is true that I saw Mrs. Vanderbilt while I was abroad," he said, "as it is true that we warm friends. I admire her very much. She is a charming woman, and any man who had the good fortune to become her husband would indeed feel highly honored.

"I believe that Mrs. Vanderbilt, when she returned from Europe a short time ago, characterized these reports as ridiculous. I cannot be any more explicit than to use the same word she has. The report is ridiculous and that ends it."

FEARS WIFE HAS TAKEN HER LIFE

Louis N. Dumont of No. 12 Granite street, Webster, has applied to the Boston police for help in finding his wife, who has been missing since last Tuesday. He thinks she has committed suicide or is dangerously ill in some hospital.

"Our four-year-old daughter, Denise, is grieving for her mother," declared Dumont to the police. "Her love for Denise and for our two-year-old boy, I think, keep her from killing herself. When she left home Tuesday she asked me, 'What would you do if I should commit suicide?' and I told her I should not know what to do without her."

MISS ELKINS JILTS DUKE?

ROME, Oct. 12.—A report is current in high society that the Abruzzi-Elkins engagement is off, owing to Miss Elkins's refusal to change her religion, which is a sine qua non of marriage in the case of the Duke.

No official confirmation of the report can be obtained, but it is expected that there will be an announcement of some sort in a day or two.

BITTER BATTLE IN CAMBRIDGE OVER HOSPITAL

One million and a half dollars' worth of property is represented in the protest which will be presented to the Cambridge Board of Aldermen to-morrow night against the granting of a license for a maternity hospital at No. 84 Magazine street.

The petitioner is Miss Anna Hadford, a Boston nurse, who recently bought the property, on which stands an old-fashioned house.

Practically all the residents within a radius of a quarter of a mile will be heard from in the fight before the board. The locality is one of the most exclusive residential sections in the University City, and owners declare their property would be depreciated fully 25 per cent.

Ex-Senator Frederick W. Dallinger has been engaged by the protestants, and real estate experts will testify to the damages which might result to property should the hospital be established.

The Rev. Richard Wright, pastor of the Pilgrim Church, who lives at the corner of Erie and Magazine streets, is one of the leaders in the fight. His fine residence is directly opposite the proposed hospital buildings.

Dr. Frank E. Lane of No. 98 Magazine street said: "There is no need of a lying-in hospital in this fine residential section."

Miss V. M. Morse, daughter of the late Banker Asa Morse, and a well known Cambridge society leader, is also strongly against the hospital location.

George P. Cooley is also among the number who oppose the hospital on the ground that delicate persons will suffer from the noises. His mother has been ill for five years.

GRESHAM TO DO FISHING DUTY

In anticipation of the opening of the herring season off Newfoundland, the United States revenue cutter Gresham, Captain Kay Ferry, left Boston to-day for the fishing grounds to represent the American interests under the modus vivendi which has been in operation since the expiration of the treaty five years ago. The Gresham went first to Gloucester, where she took on Major A. B. Alexander, chief of division of the United States Bureau of Fisheries. The Gresham will proceed to St. Pierre and St. Johns, Newfoundland, and the bay of Islands.

MELLEN TAKES REINS OF B. & M. THIS WEEK

BILLARD TO VOTE HUGE BLOCK OF 160,000 SHARES AT ANNUAL MEETING.

With the annual meeting of the Boston & Maine stockholders only two days off, there is little doubt on State street that there will be some very important changes in the directorate dictated by the New Haven interests, which now own some 160,000 shares, or over half the capital stock of the company.

John L. Billard of Meriden, in whose bank this huge block is deposited, announced on Saturday to the BOSTON AMERICAN that he would attend the annual meeting at Lawrence on Wednesday.

It is not doubted that Mr. Billard will vote the Morgan-New Haven stock as his associate financiers dictate. This will mean, it is believed, the election of at least two Connecticut directors, one of them being himself, and five other probably Vice-President Stevens, of the New Haven who, it is declared, will take Presidents Tuttle's place within a few weeks at the farthest. The action will signify the actual assumption of control by the New Haven.

Another Mellen Denial.

In view of the recent developments in the "merger" situation, some of the correspondence that has passed between President Mellen and the State Railroad Commission is interesting.

On July 11 the commission wrote to Mr. Mellen, asking for all entries on the books of the company relating to the acquisition of the famous block of 160,948 shares of Boston & Maine stock.

On July 28—note how prompt Mr. Mellen was—he answered:

"There ARE no entries of any description on any of the books of the New Haven Company regarding the acquisition of 160,948 shares of Boston & Maine stock, or any part thereof."

In his report to the New Haven stockholders for the year ending June 30, 1907, and as shown in the balance sheet published in House document No. 1,175 last year, page 71, Mr. Mellen submitted the item:

"Other investments," "Boston & Maine stock, 160,948 shares, par value $10,094,800; book value $12,855,984.20."

Two Conflicting Statements.

Mr. Mellen submitted this statement to his stockholders showing $12,000,000 worth of Boston & Maine stock held as an asset against his proposed flotation of $39,000,000 worth of 4 per cent. bonds.

Was he lying to his stockholders then, or is he lying to the Massachusetts Railroad Commission now?

On December 21, 1907, Mr. Mellen declared that his road did not own the Boston & Maine stock. On the 30th of June previous, in his sworn report to the stockholders and the State, he admitted that the stock was held in the treasury of the New England Navigation Company.

Which of his statements are to be believed?

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 12.—Mr. Bryan had only two speeches on his schedule for to-day. As a result he called it almost as much of a day of rest as yesterday, which he spent for the most part in sleeping and reading. Both his speeches to-day were to students of the State university.

To-morrow he starts by special train for a stumping tour of Nebraska, making about fifty speeches in the territory covered by Mr. Taft in his recent trip across the State. Mr. Bryan has been doing his best for some weeks to follow up Taft.

'MERRY WIDOW' DAY AT FAIR

Today begins the third week of the Boston Food Fair in the Park Square Coliseum, and also, unfortunately, begins the final week there for Sousa and his band concerts.

A number of special events have been arranged for the week, beginning with "Merry Widow" day to-morrow afternoon, when the members of "The Merry Widow" company at the Tremont Theatre will attend the fair in a body. The principals and chorus will take part in exercises from one end of the 1,000-foot exposition hall to the other end, adding much to the life and gaiety of the place. Sousa's Band will play "Merry Widow" music.

The management of the Merry Widow" company, with the consent of the Food Fair management, has arranged a pleasant and novel surprise for the public in one of the special incidents of the afternoon, and what this surprise is they will not tell, but everyone at the fair to-morrow afternoon will be let in on the secret.

Wednesday night will be "Harvard night" at the fair. Sousa's Band will discourse Harvard airs.

CONNERS GIVES BRYAN 100,000

By Boston American Leased Wire.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 12.—W. J. Conners, chairman of the State Democratic Committee, predicted to-day that Chanler will carry the State by 200,000, and that Bryan's plurality in the State will reach 100,000.

"How many counties will the Democrats carry?" the State chairman was asked.

"It is absolutely certain that Bryan will carry twenty-one counties and Chanler twenty-five," replied Mr. Conners.

FOUR DAYS ON RAFT; SAVED AS DEATH NEARED

The Houston line steamer Horatius brought to this port to-day Captain Monroe and five colored seamen who had been rescued, nearly dead, from a raft on which they had been floating four days without food or water in the Caribbean Sea.

They are part of the crew of the British schooner Sirocco, which went to pieces three weeks ago on a West Indian reef.

Dispatches yesterday from Newport News said that Mate Joe Laing and Cook Gilbert Roberts of the Sirocco had been picked up in the Caribbean by the British steamer Tiverton and landed at Newport News. The mate and cook supposed the other six men had perished.

When the Sirocco was wrecked she was pounded to pieces so quickly that the crew had no time to make a large raft and stock it with water and provisions. They were dumped into the angry sea among a mass of wreckage.

Mate Laing and Cook Roberts clung to one mass of wreckage, and were blown away from the rest of the crew.

Captain Roberts and his five seamen clung to other timbers, and managed to fashion a rude raft. They became exhausted by exposure and lack of nourishment, to which the tortures of thirst were added. The sea kept calm after the storm, else they would have been pitched off the raft in their weakness.

When the Horatius was sighted, at some distance, one of the dying men managed to prop himself up with one hand and wave the other hand weakly. The shipwrecked men were taken aboard the Horatius.

CONGRESS OF NEW ENGLAND TO MEET HERE

At the coming conference of New England Governors and other State officials in this city for the promotion of New England interests and the preservation of New England industries three topics of discussion will be: Tree planting, the protection of shellfish, the construction and maintenance of State highways and the regulation and taxation of automobiles.

Plans for the three-day conference were elaborated at a preliminary conference of the Governors of the six New England States at the Algonquin Club Saturday.

It was voted to hold the conference in Boston, to have the Governors participate and to invite as members the Lieutenant-Governors, the Attorney-General, the presidents of the New England Senates and speakers of the New England Houses of Representatives, together with the New England Congressmen and United States Senators. The Governors of the different States will also be empowered to add prominent citizens to the number of two for each representative in Congress and two for each United States Senator.

Tree planting will be discussed the opening day of the conference, the protection of lobsters, clams and shellfish the second day, and highways and automobiles the last day. Experts will be invited to make addresses on the various topics. There will be discussion by the accredited delegates. All meetings will be public.

WOMEN, WORK FOR MR. OSGOOD

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

EVERY woman, be she wife or mother or sweetheart, has great influence over some man. The good woman, and, thank goodness, most women are good, uses that influence for the good of that person over whom it is exerted.

In three weeks' time every woman will have a chance to prove whether her influence is for good or bad.

I do not mean to say that a woman can actually control a man's vote, but she can keep at a man day after day, urging him to think of what he is doing when he takes such an important step as voting for the President of the United States.

Don't be content to sit down and say, "Oh, I am only a woman. I look after the home and leave the voting to the votes the best man will always be elected, men. I don't know anything about politics."

Learn something about politics. Get your husband or your father or brother to explain the situation to you.

Read the newspapers and take an intelligent interest in this great issue.

Make up your mind as to which man is going to do the most for you and your children and your home, and then use all your influence to win votes for him.

The day is soon coming when you will be able to vote yourself, and when woman for with unerring instinct she will select the man who will stand for the interest and advancement of the American home.

Among the candidates for Governor in Massachusetts there is one man who is absolutely the foe of the trusts and the friend of the home. His name is W. A. Osgood, and every woman who wins a vote for him helps to materially benefit the country and her own family.

Ask your husband, son or sweetheart what man he intends voting for and then ask him why he votes for that man, and unless he can give a very good reason urge him to vote for your candidate.

In England and Canada the women take the greatest possible interest in the elections and do much actual canvassing for votes.

The American home is the heart of the country and the mother is the heart of the home, so is it not right that she should have some opinion and choice as to whom the men in office should be?

When you begin to talk politics, the men in the family will tell you that you don't know what you are talking about, and that woman's place is the home. They will politely imply that it is unfeminine to talk politics, but don't pay any attention to them; just go ahead and learn all you can and tell them that you mean to understand all about politics, that you have the country's welfare just as much at heart as they have.

A knowledge of politics will not make you one particle less feminine. The old maid, who has a right to take an interest in politics and to try her best to turn men's votes in what she considers to be the right direction.

Remember, when you talk to men, that Mr. Osgood is ONE man who has steadily fought the trusts that make a specialty of robbing women, including the employment agency trust and the loan sharks.

Sermons in Stones Marking History's Path

No. 22—Old Stonehenge

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY

To go to England without seeing Stonehenge would be like going to Italy without seeing the Coliseum.

This most remarkable example of the ancient stone circles, or cromlechs, is situated in Salisbury Plain, Wiltshire, about ten miles from the city of Amesbury.

Originally, Stonehenge consisted of two concentric circles of monoliths, which enclosed two smaller rows of stone in the shape of a horseshoe. The outer circle contained thirty pillar stones, sixteen feet in height and eighteen feet in girth, which supported lofty silver stones placed horizontally on their tops. The inner circle, nine feet distant from the outer one, consisted of forty stones, six to eight feet high.

The ovals, or horseshoes, contained, the larger, five pairs of trilithons, standing separate from each other; the smaller, nineteen stones.

The Holy of Holies Within

In the centre of this smaller horseshoe structure (which may be called the Holy of Holies) was the supposed "Altar Stone," some fifteen feet long.

The whole was surmounted by a ramp part and within 370 feet in circumference.

Of the original structure, only seventeen upright and seven horizontal stones remain their positions.

Nobody knows how old Stonehenge is. We only know that it is as old as English history or tradition.

Modern research has established the fact that the structure dates from at least as early as the Bronze Age. How far back into the Bronze Age its antiquity extends no one is able to say.

Various theories as to the nature of the grim old stone pile have been advanced by scholars, but the opinion now well nigh universally adopted is that Stonehenge was a Druid temple, and occupied the same position with regard to the other temples that the Cathedral of Canterbury does to the other churches of the English Established.

It was the annual meeting place, a sort of Mecca or Jerusalem, where once a year the faithful gathered for their supreme devotions.

Druidism was the national religion of the Celtic peoples with its headquarters at first in Britain, its Pantheon, or Holy City, being the ancient stone circle we are now considering.

The priests of this old religion were the celebrated Druids, who were the arbiters of all disputes and the judges of the courts. Whoever refused to submit to them was banished from all human society. The young reverenced them from tradition, and to their commands the old listened with rapt attention.

Groves of oak were their chosen retreats, because their favorite tree was the oak. Even more sacred than the oak itself was the mistletoe, which, when found growing on the oak, was taken as the symbol of Man descended from God. Out with a gold knife, the little parasitic plant, with its white, waxlike berries, was lovingly placed upon their altars and given highest veneration.

In the mind of the Druids the Circle was the only fitting emblem of the Supreme Being, hence under the great oaks they raised the circular stone temples which are still to be found all over the old Celtic Europe.

Men of Intense Patriotism

Druidism proclaimed the doctrine of immortality, and taught in the most uncompromising fashion the doctrine of man's accountability to God.

From the time that they were first encountered by Julius Cæsar until they were practically destroyed by Suetonius Paulinus, A. D. 61, the Druid priests proved themselves to be the most consummate patriots of whom history speaks.

Better than anything else in the world they loved liberty, and in them the Romans found the hardest foes to conquer that they ever encountered. They fought long, and to the last, and were conquered only when they were annihilated.

Stonehenge is the memorial of a people who knew how to die, but who did not know what it was to surrender.

A very pretty story, by the way, full of the tenderest human interest, comes down to us from the people who used to worship at Stonehenge.

In a last final effort the Druids inspired their people to rise with all their might against their Roman oppressors, and encouraged the leader who was one Julius Sabinus. Of course, the revolt was crushed and Sabinus, outlawed, took refuge in a cavern in one of his estates.

Epponia, his young and beautiful wife, shared her husband's misery for nine years, and after some months presented her Sabinus to go with her to Rome, that she might see the Emperor, Vespasian, to save him.

"Caesar," said Epponia to the Emperor showing him at the same time her two born children, "I suckled them that there might be more of us to ask for mercy. But Vespasian knew no mercy, and Sabinus was sentenced to death.

Epponia, however, and one more favor to ask, and said: "Caesar, do me this grace, to let me die with my husband, for I have lived more happily beneath the earth and in the darkness than then in the splendor of the empire."

The world-wonder heard her prayer, and with her brave husband she went forth to the death which made all things even.

How to Give a Dinner in Honor of a Newly-Married Couple--By Mary Hutton Pell

Mrs. Pell, who is writing this series of articles for the Boston American, is a member of New York's Four Hundred and an authority on etiquette and all matters relating to society affairs. She will answer, through the Boston American, inquiries on these matters addressed to her in care of this paper.)

As the hands of the clock approach the hour of 8, the various members of the house party assembled in the drawing room, and their manner is indicative of arrivals from other houses in the neighborhood.

To-night Mr. and Mrs. Junebride are the guests of honor, and as the bride is a Continent the young bride is usually expected to wear her wedding gown—minus the veil, of course—at all ceremonious or formal entertainments given in her honor. Especially is this expected when, as is so often the case, there are heirlooms of priceless old lace used in its decoration, real laces, that are heirlooms in either her or the bridegroom's family.

Bride Can Now Wear Jewels

Of course, many jewels are added to her toilette after she becomes a matron, for it is not good taste for a bride to wear a profusion of jewels with her wedding toilette when the ceremony is solemnized in church.

On this side of the ocean, however, say one of the smart dinner frocks of the trousseau may be selected, with such jewels as may be appropriate cleverly disposed on the corsage.

After the guests are gathered in the drawing room, and dinner is announced, the host heads the way to the dining room with Mrs. Junebride, and the hostess going in last on the arm of Mr. Junebride.

MRS. MARY HUTTON PELL.

Cards Name Dinner Partners

In the hall each gentleman has been handed a card, on which the name of the lady whom he is to take to dinner is plainly written.

Dinner is a very elaborate repast in this instance, and the table is a mass of lovely mauve orchids grouped with exquisite taste in low gold bowls down the length of the table. Low and flat decorations are correct nowadays; the tall pile of fruit and flowers that used to be considered quite the thing is altogether passe.

Candles in beautifully chased antique silver gilt candelabra are shed a most becoming light. The tablecloth is of rare old Italian lace, slightly yellowed by time, and laid over a dull white satin undercloth that throws up the pattern to perfection.

Four men in livery, ably marshalled the dignified butler in plain black, serve the guests solemnly and deftly.

Dinner starts with a Russian hors d'oeuvre, and goes on through its several courses to the sweet, which to-night is an ice piece, prepared as an especial compliment by the chef. Turtle doves in delicately tinted ices are placed in nests of spun sugar, and look almost as though they could coo audibly. The delicate little compliment is appreciated by the guests, and gives rise to many jests and some chaffing of the pair who are the guests of honor.

Women Leave Table First

When dinner is ended, at an almost imperceptible signal from Mrs. Crossus, the guests rise and all the women leave the room, passing out in front of the hostess who stands by the door, she going out last of all.

Coffee and liquors are served to the ladies in the drawing room, brought in by the second man and footman, while the gentlemen take theirs with their cigars in the dining room, served by the butler.

The remarkable thing to the after-dinner interval, while the ladies are in the drawing room alone, is that they all remain standing while awaiting the return of the men, a new idea, supposed to produce the modern slim figure.

After the men have finished their liqueurs and cigars in the dining room they join the women in the drawing room; and then there is a stampede for the bridge tables. Parties are made up instantly, and play begins; while the few choice spirits to whom bridge does not appeal betake themselves to the music room or the billiard room, as taste and inclination may suggest.

An hour's play after dinner is usually sufficient; and then the guests from other houses make their departure, the house guests, however, not retiring until the hostess makes some suggestion in that direction.

Every time an engagement is announced men wonder what can she see in him and women wonder what he can see in her.

Expert Hints on Beauty

BY THE PROFESSOR

ABOUT BLEACHING

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Kindly tell me if when you use buttermilk to take freckles off you can get a bottle and use it until it is gone, or if you must use fresh every day. Also tell me about how much peroxide to use in a basin of water to bleach neck and face. LOUISVILLE.

YOU should not use a whole bottle-ful of water in applying the peroxide. Dilute a little of it in a bottle and apply with a sponge or soft cloth. You need not get the buttermilk fresh every day. It can be used until it gets very sour. You can use the peroxide full strength if you like. If you are willing to wait the four years, that would mean a long engagement, and you should be very sure of yourself before you enter upon it. Talk it over with your mother once more, and then follow the course which you feel in your heart to be the right and wise one.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

MOTHER IS RIGHT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am nearly 20 years of age, and for the past four months have been going with a young man of the same age. Although I like him, my mother objects to my keeping steadily company with him, as she says that he is too young for me, and he cannot think of marrying me for the next four years, as he is studying, and will not be in a position to marry before that time. Now, Miss Fairfax, what I want to know is this: Should I take my mother's advice and give him up or should I go with him? He expects me to give him a definite answer one way or the other. He thinks a great deal of me. THOUGHTFUL.

I THINK your mother is right, unless your love for him is so great that you are willing to wait the four years. If that would mean a long engagement, and you should be very sure of yourself before you

DINE TO MAKE IT.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl seventeen years old, and several months ago I was introduced to a young man two years my senior. I have met him several times since then and I think by his manner toward me he would like to call on me. Would it be proper for me to ask him to call, as he is a perfect gentleman; and shall I ask him personally or send him a little note asking him to call. We were introduced to each other at my own home and by a very old and intimate friend of mine. M. E.

I CAN see no reason why you should not ask him to call upon you. Ask him personally the next time you see him.

dine to make it, even if she does understand the political situation. What a man is principally afraid of is that woman will grow emancipated and spend less time attending to his creature comforts.

But, on the contrary, the bigger and more intelligent woman grows the more splendid wife and mother she will make.

She may grow emancipated in many ways, but she will never cut the tender, loving bonds that bind her as wife and mother. And as long as she is wife or mother or sweetheart or independent old maid, she has a right to take an interest in politics and to try her best to

Sad, Sad Tale of the House That Jack Built

WHEN Mrs. Jack went away for a month's visit she was quite contented about her house, for Jack assured her that in the sad days before their marriage he had been used to keeping bachelor's hall, and that the pretty little home would be safe in his care. Still, there was a shade of anxiety in her mind on the morning of her return.

"Did you get along all right at the house?" she asked when her husband met her at the station.

"Yes, fine."

"Did you get many meals at home?"

"Some. I couldn't eat much.

"You poor old dear, it must have been dreadfully lonesome for you."

"It was. This is our car," said Jack, who did not seem to take an interest in the subject of his housekeeping experience.

It Didn't Run Away, Anyway.

"How sweet and natural it all looks!" she said, as Jack unlocked the door of their dwelling.

"Yes, the house is still here," he remarked unenthusiastically.

Mrs. Jack inwardly believed the fact that the host of men, like her dear old Jack, were painfully lacking in sentiment. But as she stepped into the hall, where the dust lay apparently a half-inch thick on the table and bannack, her own rejoicing at coming home weakened a little.

When she entered the living room, where overflowing ashtrays filled her nostrils with unpleasantly antique odors, she gasped. "Oh, Jack!"

But Jack seemingly unconscious of any discordant note in the usually attractive room, said: "I'll have to hurry down town, dear, or I shall be late at the office."

So he did, leaving Mrs. Jack to explore the rest of the house alone.

Even the Spare Room Mussed Up.

She went first to her own room. Hardly waiting to remove hat and gloves, she began trying to straighten out the chaos she found. She hung up trousers and coats and put away shirts and then made up the disordered bed.

"Poor Jack! How he must have suffered in this untidy place," she said to herself.

By the time she had made the tour of the dining room, kitchen and pantry she came to the conclusion that never again would she trust her beloved belonging to the unfamiliar care of Jack.

On the dining room table was her best damask cloth, generously spilled on it, one end with coffee and stained at the other with great spots of grape juice. Soiled dishes—her finest china—were piled upon and three bottles of Rusty knives, forks and spoons lay in the slop with a pot of half-cooked oatmeal. Two venerable fried eggs on a saucer, flanked on either side by bottles of soured cream, stood on one window sill, while on the other was the coffee pot full of grounds.

He Wasn't So Thin, After All

Mrs. Jack gazed for a moment at the scene. Then she dried her tears, and, holding her skirts high above the greasy floor, walked out of the kitchen and into her own room—the only spot in the house which as yet had been brought into semi-order.

She donned her freshest and most becoming frock and, going out of the house, locked the door on what seemed to her a reign of terror and confusion and presented herself at the office of husband's office in time to go to lunch with him.

"How glad you are everything straightened out already?" he asked, with a welcoming smile. "You must have found things pretty shipshape."

"Shipshape!" repeated Mrs. Jack, surreptitiously. "The ship must have been struck by a typhoon."

"I suppose it was a little mussy. I really meant to go around there yesterday and fix things up."

"Around there! What do you mean?"

"Well, you see," answered Jack, looking for the first time squarely at her, "after I had slept in all the beds and got a good many of the dishes dirty. I thought the best thing to do was to move over to the club, so I stayed at the house only three days after you left."

"Why!" Mrs. Jack's only audible comment, but as she looked at Jack she said to herself that he was not really so thin and tired as she had at first thought.

TO ALL THIN PEOPLE!

"Will you let me prove that I can help you without a penny of Cost?"

I know from years of experience that I can put solid flesh on, so to speak, any lean, scrawny neck and shoulders, a voluptuous bust and well developed arms.

There is just one way that I can show you to your own satisfaction that I can do this, and I am willing now to show you at my expense.

Just write me to-day and I will send you promptly without a penny or promise to pay a trial treatment of Jack Wilmer's Flesh Builder, (a purely vegetable compound which is guaranteed to contain no drugs).

Try it at my expense. If it proves anything, it can only prove my statement, and my sure is has cost you nothing to try. Its results have shown that I can well afford to give this Free Trial and that is the reason I offer it to you.

The treatment will positively enlarge the breasts from 2 to 6 inches—will give every man a robust manly build—will also give a clear, healthy tint to the complexion. The Free Treatment proves it.

If this free offer crowds our capacity it will have to be withdrawn at once; it would be well to write now—at once to The Hall Co., Jones Co., Seal, Manly Bldg., Elmira, New York.

GOMPERS' ORDER TO AID BRYAN SCORED BY LABOR

C. L. U. DELEGATES DENOUNCE BRYAN; CALL HEARST WORKMEN'S BEST FRIEND.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—A recommendation by the Executive Committee of the Central Federated Union to indorse a new circular issued by President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, calling upon unions to contribute to the Bryan campaign fund yesterday brought forth bitter attacks on the Gompers policy.

An eloquent speech to the delegates by former Register Alfred J. Boulton of Brooklyn, a leading member of the central body and one of the Stereotypers' Union, aroused enthusiasm. Boulton declared that William Randolph Hearst had shown himself to be the greatest friend organized labor ever had in America.

"I have been instructed by my union," said Delegate Boulton, "not to vote one way or the other on the proposition for financial aid for the Gompers policy in support of the Democratic party. I am in favor of Hearst. He has done more for organized labor than any other powerful man in the country. Organized labor was badly disrupted in Chicago when Hearst went there. He established a newspaper, employed union men and supported not only the printers and the stereotypers, but the whole labor movement.

Advocates Independent Voting.

"In travelling through the West I found that the great corporation agents, although they did not dislike Mr. Hearst personally, were indignant at him for establishing the Los Angeles Examiner when organized labor had been disrupted there and because of it was put on its feet again.

"Parry and his lieutenants had organized labor on its knees in Chicago until Hearst started the Chicago American, when the unions regained their full strength.

"I deny the assertion that a vote for Hisgen would mean a vote for Taft. Independent political action has done wonders for the working people of Great Britain.

"In 1896 nobody was more for Bryan than I was, but now I am as much opposed to the Democratic party as I once was in favor of it. In Chicago a convention of free men repudiated the Democratic party. It is now plain that Bryan wants to harmonize the forces of plunder.

Indorsement Is Opposed.

"The leaders of the Democratic party have led the party too long. They have betrayed the great masses of the people. In 1896 Bryan took the stand of no compromise with the plunderers, but it is just the other way. Those who have lined up behind Bryan are the same type of politicians as those who have lined up behind Taft.

"A million and a half votes for Hisgen or Debs will be worth more to organized labor than ten million votes for Bryan or Taft.

"The Independence League platform is the most progressive ever adopted. No party can promise more than the Democratic party, but when it comes to carrying out its policy it does nothing. No party has less claim to the labor vote when it comes to performance than the Democratic party. The Democratic party is absolutely a plutocratic party."

MANILA, Oct. 12.—Eight new cases of cholera are reported in this city for the day. The health officials are very hopeful, although inclined to be somewhat suspicious of the sharp declines in the spread of the disease, and are unwilling to accept them as evidence that the cholera epidemic has been arrested. It is intended to continue the active campaign now being carried on at least two weeks longer.

FOUND DEAD IN BARN.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 12.—A boy who gave his name as Edward Sands, and who came here from Lowell three weeks ago, was found dead in the loft of a barn belonging to Dr. Tasunis E. Gunning, by medical examiner. After examination Dr. Gunning decided that the boy's death was due to heart disease. He was seventeen years old and had been employed as a hostler.

LEAGUERS TO RALLY TO-NIGHT AT PLYMOUTH

Ticket Leaders, Osgood and McCartney, to Speak on Vital Issues.

The Independence League's State campaign was continued to-night in the historic town of Plymouth, where the Pilgrim Fathers landed because they sought freedom from home rule and other governmental and social evils nearly three hundred years ago.

The Plymouth rally has been arranged by the neighbors and friends of Robert J. McCartney, the League candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, who lives in Kingston. Mr. McCartney is one of the most respected and best known citizens in Plymouth County, and the fact that he is a candidate for the second office in the State is regarded by citizens, regardless of political affiliations, as a circumstance warranting local pride.

The speakers, besides Mr. McCartney, will be William N. Osgood of Lowell, League candidate for Governor of Massachusetts, and the Rev. Roland D. Sawyer of Haverhill, the clergyman who preaches righteousness on the political platform as well as from the pulpit. He attracted national attention by the force and eloquence of the speech he made for Thomas L. Hisgen at the Chicago convention just before the great opponent of Standard Oil was nominated for President of the United States.

The Rev. Mr. Sawyer, like Messrs. Osgood and McCartney, has always been an ardent friend of organized labor. He has championed the cause of the workingman for years, and also urged in and out of the pulpit the administration of the government for the good of the people and not for the benet of privileged classes. The Plymouth rally to-night will be held in Grand Army Hall in the home of the Pilgrim Fathers.

The same speakers will be the principal ones in a rally to be held in the Horticultural Hall on Front street, Worcester, on Friday night.

It's Simply Rich Milk Without Germs

Please don't think of Van Camp's as a new sort of milk. We evaporate nothing but water, and we add nothing at all. This milk is just like the richest of raw milk, save that it lacks the germs.

You would all give up the milkman, and all use Van Camp's, if you knew all the facts about it.

If you could see your milkman's dairy, then see ours, there would be no question about it.

If you could see our methods, and see his, you would want us to supply your milk.

The facts are worth knowing. They mean a great deal to you. There is nothing more dangerous than dangerous milk.

Please learn, for your folks' sake, the safety and goodness of Van Camp's.

Cook With It

Note the delicious, surprising flavor that Van Camp's gives to a milk dish. That flavor comes solely from milk.

Van Camp's is the whole milk—something you never get from your milkman. All of the butter fat, all of the solids are in it.

Your milkman's milk, before you get it, stands a while and separates. The butter fat rises and the solids fall.

You get a different milk from every part of the can. But you never get the whole milk—never get it twice alike.

Then, the butter fat you do get is often skimmed off before the milk goes into cooking.

So you get a new flavor when you cook with Van Camp's. Yet it's only the flavor of whole, rich milk.

Try it once. You'll never again make milk dishes out of raw milk.

Sterilized Milk

Van Camp's Milk is sterilized, so that not a germ can exist in it. But that isn't all.

Each of our 20,000 cows is inspected. So are the men who milk them.

Our dairies are sanitary. We make a business of cleanliness. Our buildings, where the milk is evaporated, are built without wood.

All that science, skill and care can do are employed for your protection.

Van Camp's has been submitted to many a test, but never has a germ been found in it.

Not so with milkman's milk.

Every drop of raw milk has myriads of germs in it. And many of those germs are dangerous.

In Washington, D. C., it was recently found that 11 per cent of the dealers sold tubercular milk.

And the germs in milk are known to cause two-thirds of all infant mortality.

Of all the dangers that threaten mankind, there is none to compare with raw milk.

Nothing But Milk

Van Camp's is simply rich Holstein milk, with two-thirds the water evaporated.

Nothing whatever is added—no sugar, no starch, no preservative.

Don't confuse Van Camp's with condensed milk, which is half sugar—a milk that you can't use in cooking.

Van Camp's comes to you just as it comes from the cow, less part of the water.

Analysis shows about 30 per cent of solids, of which 8 per cent is butter fat.

Only the germs are lacking—the dangers, the impurities, the infections.

Six Cents Per Quart

One pint of Van Camp's when you replace the water, makes about three pints of rich milk.

The cost of such milk, if you buy Van Camp's by the case, is about six cents per quart.

Van Camp's, when it comes to you, is as thick as thick cream. So thick that you add one part water for coffee. Yet it costs half what cream costs.

Then you have no waste—no shortage. You open the cans as you need them.

So, the finest milk in America is also the cheapest milk. Pure milk costs less than impure—rich milk less than half milk.

Do you know any reason for paying more for raw milk than you must pay for Van Camp's?

For Children

The ablest physicians, again and again, have passed on Van Camp's Milk.

They could find no other milk so safe —none so good. Nor can you.

Children can drink Van Camp's without a thought of germ infection. Its very purity makes it doubly delicious.

And children like the slight almond flavor, due to sterilization.

You don't let your children eat raw meat. Don't let them drink raw milk.

Van Camp's Milk comes in 5 and 10 cent cans—at your grocer's. Try one can and you will want it always. Then it is cheaper to buy by the case—also more convenient.

Produced in five states by the dairies of the Van Camp Packing Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

BY SAM CRANE.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Frank Chance's Cubs will have to be handed a big bunch of medals for gameness, and the captain himself the biggest one of all.

In the two batting rallies, one in the ninth inning in Detroit on Saturday and the other in Chicago yesterday the Cubs lined up against the ball in as pretty exhibitions of consecutive batting as any team ever made. They made five and six runs respectively in those two rallies and were obliged to bat the game out at the times they did. That shows gameness. It makes no difference whether Donovan weakened yesterday or Summers in the previous game, the fact remains that the Cubs walloped the ball when the crucial time arrived.

It will be remembered that the Cubs usually beat the Giants in some one inning, as they did on Thursday in the deciding game, and they also landed on Matty of the Giants last trip to Chicago for five runs all in one inning. Now, Matty did not weaken on Thursday, but he simply could not keep the ball where the pesky Cubs couldn't punch it, and for keeps, too.

Tinker in Limelight.

Joe Tinker, who broke up so many games against the Giants, figured very conspicously again, and as is usual with him, he was the fellow who started the rally. Yesterday Joe, the jolter, hammered the ball into the bleachers for a home run, and that stinger was enough to win the game, but he was followed by most of his fellows with bingle after bingle, until the half dozen tallies materialized.

There was a peculiar incident connected with Tinker's batting during the championship season just past. He had been batting for about five weeks at not much more than a .150 clip. The Giants arrived in Chicago on their second trip when Joe was in his batting slump, and he was not much feared. The game went along to the tenth inning, I think, with the score nothing each, when my bold Joe Tinker came to bat and just plunked one of Matty's high balls for a clean home run to the limits of the grounds. That was one of the games he broke up.

That pinch wallop was the turning point in Tinker's batting. Whether he got it into his mind that if he could hit Matty he should be able to hit any other pitcher, or whatever it was, he gained confidence right then and there, and from that time until the end of the season he batted for over .300, and at one time was going at a .400 clip.

Evers and Chance.

Joe Tinker, too, is one of the brainiest players on the Chicago team; in fact, McGraw has told me frequently that Tinker was the real brains of the team. But surely he has two of the headiest of players alongside him in Johnny Evers and Frank Chance.

It has been noticeable that whenever Chance calls a halt and goes to the pitcher's box for a consultation, as he very often does, much to the aggravation of partisan fans, Tinker is usually on hand to take part in the confab. I know that Chance relies greatly upon the judgment of his phenomenal shortstop.

Donovan, almost the sole reliance of the Tigers for the series, having now been severely pummelled, it looks not very probable that the Cubs will again make a clean sweep, as they did last Fall, and without even giving the Tigers the honor of a tie.

Chance came right back with Overall yesterday, although the big Californian did not look good enough on Saturday to hold that job. Chance, in consequence, now has Brown or Pfeister to go in the box to-day/ and with his pitching staff in splendid condition and more than all, confident.

The team winning the first game of any world's championship series has a long way the best of it on the pitching combination that is arranged beforehand.

YOU ALWAYS FIND THIS MAN AFTER THE GAME.

WELSH TELLS WHY BAT NELSON SHOULD FIGHT

Freddie Welsh, on the Fourth of July last, fought a twenty-five-round draw with Packy McFarland in the Vernon arena of the Jeffries Athletic Club in Los Angeles. Welsh and McFarland are now recognized as the two most formidable challengers for Battling Nelson's title. Welsh by reason of his draw contest with McFarland considers himself on an equal footing with McFarland, and in the following article states his views of his claims on the attention of Champion Nelson.

BY FREDDIE WELSH.

Lightweight and Welterweight Champion of Great Britain.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12.—I am ambitious to fight my way to the top of the heap. In other words, I want a chance to meet Battling Nelson for the lightweight championship of the world. My record is known the world over and it speaks for itself. I am willing to leave it to the great majority, the sporting public, if I am not just as much entitled to a match with Nelson as is Packy McFarland or any other lightweight.

I believe that it is pretty well understood that McFarland and myself are the only two lightweights in the game to-day who stand a chance of defeating the Dane for his hard-earned title.

McFarland and I battled for twenty-five rounds to a draw, the greatest of all living fighters, James J. Jeffries, rendering this decision. The almost universal opinion of the sporting writers upon this occasion was that the honors of the long struggle were with me for nineteen rounds out of the twenty-five.

The public demanded that McFarland and myself meet again to settle the question of supremacy. McFarland made many excuses for his failure to make a better showing in the Vernon ring, but instead of signing up for a return match he and his manager left the city. I am still in Los Angeles and am ready now or any time to fight Packy all over again. This fact being established, I will now show where I figure to win over Nelson if given the opportunity.

Youth Must Be Served

In the first place I must cite the old adage of "Youth must be served." We all thought that Joe Gans, the "Old Master," was invincible until Nelson toppled him over. Now history may be repeated when Nelson fights again, whether he meets me, McFarland or some other man younger than he is.

Nelson has taken more terrific beatings than any other man that ever held the title. These terrible spells of punishment have had their effect upon the Dane's constitution, rugged though it is. Nelson is only human; he must be beaten some day, and I firmly believe that I am the man that can turn the trick.

I don't want to be considered boastful when I make this assertion. It is a business proposition with me, this winning of the world's championship, and I have fought the battle over in my mind a hundred times.

I believe it is conceded by the fight experts that I am a clever boxer. Nelson is not; he never claimed to be. I believe that I could hit Nelson five times for every punch that he landed on me. Nelson is anything but a hard puncher. He won his fights with Joe Gans, and in fact all of his battles, by his constant hammering away in the clinches until he had worn his man down. The moving pictures of the last Colma fight will show that every time Gans stood away and boxed at long range he had all the best of the fighting. Nelson's execution was all done in the clinches, when he stood head to head with Gans and worked his short-arm jolts to the body.

Now my first action in fighting Nelson would be to keep away from his clinch traps. I would use my cleverness to keep just far enough away from Nelson to stab him continually about the head and face. I would also swing in hard right punches to the body whenever Bat tried to coax me into one of his shoulder to shoulder engagements.

Nelson is easy to hit, everybody knows this. The worst dub in the business can land on him, so what would I do with my knowledge of the finer points of the boxing game? I would smash Nelson, round after round, until I had him beaten down to a point where I could finish him with one blow.

All this talk about my not having a knockout punch was dissipated a few nights ago, when I put Frank Carsey to sleep with one jolt to the jaw. I did this more to show the public that I had a knockout wallop then anything else. There is no comparing Carsey with Nelson, but in knocking out the former, in less than four rounds, I put a stop to the "snowflake" punch talk.

As to my record, as I said before, it speaks for itself. What first-class man did McFarland ever whip when the former was in his prime?

Britt, Herman, Yanger and Neary were all in the "has been" class when they lost to McFarland.

I won the lightweight and welterweight championship of England by beating Joe White in sixteen rounds at Pontypridd. I have met and defeated many men who outweighed me by many pounds. My challenge to Battling Nelson is not a "wildcat" affair, but is backed up by a record of the hardest kind of work in the ring. If it is a side-bet Nelson requires, I can accommodate him to the extent of $5,000, perhaps more, if he will meet me in a twenty or twenty-five round bout. If Nelson considers a forty-five round bout necessary, then so be it.

KID M'COY WILL GET BACK INTO RING THIS WEEK

The pugilistic feature of the week is Kid McCoy's return to the ring. The Kid will meet Jim Stewart, a husky New Yorker, on Friday night. McCoy can punch, is mighty clever, and is a shrewd, tantalizing fellow. But he'll find that Stewart is no Peter Maher. McCoy found the Galway racker a pretty soft pudding, but Stewart will be a different proposition.

This is by far the biggest bout of the week. Milwaukee did have an important bout billed, with Middleweight Champion Bill Papke and Hugo Kelly to do the honors, but the Mayor stepped in and called things off.

New York has another big bout on tomorrow night, when Matty Baldwin meets Kid Sullivan of Washington, whom he has already beaten.

There will be no show at the Armory A. A. this week.

BOXING BOUTS CARDED THIS WEEK

To-night—Bellfield Walcott vs. Tom Sawyer, Portland, Me.; Young Otto vs. George Memsic, New York; Joe Wagner vs. Frankie Neil, New York; Ike Moran vs. Mike Grady, Watervliet, N. Y.; bouts at Salem and Gloucester, Mass.; Mickey Gannon vs. Jimmy Murray, Philadelphia.

Tuesday—Bill McKinnon vs. Bartly Connolly, Dover, N. H.; Matty Baldwin vs. Kid Sullivan, New York; Johnny Coulon vs. Eddie Curtis, Philadelphia.

Wednesday—Bill McKinnon vs. Jack Robinson, Lymansville; Johnny Dohan vs. Harry Scroggs, New York.

Thursday—Jimmy Gardner vs. Charley Sieger, New York.

Friday—Joe Walcott vs. Bill Hurley, North Adams, Mass.; Jim Stewart vs. Kid McCoy, New York.

Saturday—Frank Klaus vs. Jim Donovan, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CHIEF WILKIE, EX-CHAMPION SPEEDWAY PACER, IS SOLD

BY ED. COGSWELL.

Chief Wilkie, 2:12¾, the former pacing champion of the Charles River Speedway, will once more be seen tackling the best in the free-for-all division, as A. J. Furbush of Brighton has purchased him of Mrs. J. T. Bailey, West Newton, and is getting him in condition for a whack at Claymos, 2:07¼, and My Star, 2:03¾, the two wigglers now having a fight for the leading honors in the Fall series of matinees.

For two seasons Chief Wilkie was invincible on the speedway. He was the property then of Mr. Furbush, his present owner. Pacers came from far and near to take his measure over the course on the Charles River, but all went away defeated. The way he did march off the half-mile heats was at the time a marvel. Halves right to a minute, with him in prime shape, was simply like breaking sticks.

Mrs. Bailey Gets Horse.

Then to the surprise of those knowing how much Mr. Furbush thought of the bay gelding, Chief Wilkie passed to the ownership of Mrs. Bailey. This was, of course, with the understanding that the horse should always have a good home, and if the time come when Mrs. Bailey desired selling him, Mr. Furbush would have the first chance in getting him back again in his old stall.

This opportunity came this week, and Mr. Furbush was not at all backward in taking his old favorites. Being fat from his previous easy life in the hands of Mrs. Bailey it will take quite a time to fit him for strenuous racing. However, it is well for the members of the Metropolitan Driving Club owning quick pacers to bear in mind that the old Roman is on his way.

Should Award Woman's Cup.

This brings to memory that the John Shepard cup for the woman driving winning the most races on the snow last Winter has never been awarded. In the result both Mrs. Bailey and Mrs. H. H. Cook won the same number of races. In the ordinary run of racing over the speedway in case of a tie the trophy goes to the one having the fastest average in the winning events.

Mr. Shepard has not said whether his cup follows this ruling; consequently the prize has remained in possession of the club, neither of the women contestants having been notified to whom deserves the reward for their efforts. It is certainly up to the race committee to settle this matter immediately.

Pickpockets Get Fat.

Isn't it queer how the shrewd race followers get pinched when they happen to take a trip among their rural cousins. Now there is "Royce" and "Rance," the surnames of two of the most prominent of the Boston lovers of horse racing, each enjoying to play a little easy cash on what they consider the horse that may have a chance in heading a summary.

Both took a run up to a well-known New Hampshire fair recently to back a "good thing" with not the least bit of feeling that anybody could look upon them as "easy meat." But such is life, for soon after having been seated in their train for home "Royce" discovered he had been touched in the depot crowd for $171, while "Rance" was shook down for an even hundred. The Boston horsemen are busily giving both their heartfelt sympathy in their loss.

Let Morris Show Sheet.

The story comes to Boston that Morris, the Clevelandite who made the Winter book on the $50,000 Derby at Readville and returned only the bettors what money they had invested when Allen Winter was returned the winner, was used as a "catspaw" for others in the book with him.

What the Boston horsemen who played in the book would like to know from Morris is, what kind of a book did he make? Was it a $10,000, $20,000, or even more? How did the book show when the result was figured? Can anybody having already torn up their tickets get their money back? In fact, Morris being "the goat," as reported, should be perfectly willing to show his sheet on the race.

JOHNSON AND BURNS USE 4-OUNCE MITTS IN SYDNEY

BY TAD.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Jack Johnson and Tommy Burns will fight to a finish in Sydney, Australia, either the last week in November or the first week in December.

Sam Fitzpatrick, Johnson's manager, writing from Naples just before they sailed for Australia, says that the match seems too good to be true, and he won't believe that Burns is going to fight until he sees him in the ring and hears the bell ring for the first round.

As the men are going to box with four-ounce gloves, it can readily be seen that the affair will be a grueling one.

It seems rather strange, though, that Burns should agree to box in Australia, where the fighters hardly get more than carfare to fight. They may dig up the $35,000, however, and surprise us all, but it seems a big bunch of money for an island to separate itself from.

Fitzpatrick's letter follows:

Naples, Sunday, Sept. 27, 1908.
R. M. S. P. "Ortona."

Dear Tad—Suppose you have heard the news of Johnson-Burns being matched. So far it looks very good—and at times I think it looks too good to be true. The Sydney people also are hustling the match. Have acted very fair—a £7,000 purse is a lot of money for Australia—or anywhere else, for that matter. In addition to the purse they have allowed us three first round-trip tickets from London, and have agreed to forfeit £1,000 if they fail to pull off the fight, which is to be to a finish, with four-ounce gloves, the last week in November or the first week in December.

If all goes well we will land in Sydney the last of October. That will give Jack four clear weeks to train. We have a gym fixed up on the boat, and Arthur puts in a couple of hours a day at the ball and skipping the rope, and now and then takes on a few husky firemen. If the weather keeps as fine as since we left, Jack will be in great trim when he lands in Sydney. But some of the old sea dogs say it's going to be rough, and "Artie" is not a very good sailor, anyway. That four weeks in Sydney before the fight will be all we'll want, and when I hear the gong sound I'll believe Burns means to fight, not before. Give regards to the boys. Accept best wishes from Jack and yours sincerely,
SAM FITZPATRICK.

Address Referee, Sydney.

* * *

Receiving the following letter from Jim Buckley, which explains itself. As far as Mr. Buckley is concerned we never had a word to say, but as long as Gans is under the management of Herford there is liable to be trouble. Gans never was straight under this man, and Mr. Buckley as well as the New York sports, are liable to be fooled on the go. Herford had Britt pull to Kid Sullivan; he had Gans allow Rufe Turner to stay the limit in order to win money on the Paris Mutuels; he had Gans lose on a foul to Britt to clear up, and had Joe take the count to Terry McGovern in Chicago.

Gans might take the count with Murphy in the first round. He might just stall and allow Tommy to go the distance. He might do a million and one things. He is a Mr. Hyde under Herford and a Dr. Jekyll under another.

One good fake will kill the game here, and there is no use of taking chances when there are so many good boys around. Here's the letter.

New York, Oct. 6, 1908.

Dear Sir—I saw in Monday's issue of the AMERICAN a statement made by a man signing his name Carey; also some comments on Gans coming to box here. I think the sporting public would like to know who Carey is and why not all concerned in the Chicago match be made public. If Murphy, whose name was never mentioned in any fake affair, will meet Gans before a New York club I will try and have him box here. It will be on the level if it has to be stopped in any round before the sixth. It's not at stopping the bout it would rest, but members would receive their assessment back. I think my guarantee to you is sufficient to prove that any bout I ever did or will put on were and will be on the level. Respectfully yours,
JIM BUCKLEY.

* * *

Mr. Kid McCoy is honestly and truly working hard for that fight he has on with Jim Stewart. He has been up along the Hudson for a week now, and, according to his letter, is feeling like a bondholder. He took a stroll across the parchment yesterday and shot the thing down here. This is what the Kid says about his place, the people and himself.

Roma Villa, Marlboro-on-Hudson.

Friend Tad—The above looks good, but you ought to see this place. "Drexel" Biddle, the Philadelphia millionaire, couldn't have a place as good to train as here. I've been to Philadelphia, and know, and you can get to the big town as quick as you can to Philadelphia. My time is rather short to train properly, but I'll give a good account of myself on the 16th, and then back here for more vigorous work, for really, Tad, training and work must be brothers.

I never worked as hard as I do now. Ten miles every morning over the hills and an hour in my gym with the big and little bags, medicine ball, rope skipping and twenty minutes' boxing with a big English sheep dog. I thought I was quick on my feet, but you should see this bobtail affair make a fool of me. We spar on the tennis court. Outside of that, some of the natives put on the gloves and keep the flies off me. You know, Thaw's Matteawan is just across the river, and some of the natives think I just escaped when they see me on the road in the morning with a pick handle, swinging it for wrist development; my blue flannel shirt and sweater, no hat. Some yaps didn't know a pick handle from a ball bat, and they show their ignorance by asking, "Where's the game?" etc. I tell them Donlin has me training to go with the Giants next season. Some suggested I join them now.

Will be down to see the Kaufman go. I hope my friend Billy D. has another Jeff. Jim McGowan, who has a hotel in Marlboro, fixed this place for me, and I am going to take a five-year lease on it, with option of buying at any time. Frank Shaw, "the Terrible Swede," is doing training stunts with me. Jack Cooper is trying to get me a sparring partner. But if you run across one, bring him up, or send C. O. D. Jack O'Brien has been too busy to leave Philadelphia, but I expect a visit from him this week. With best wishes, I am, as ever,
KID M'COY.

METS' HAVE BIG SPEEDWAY CARD FOR TOMORROW

Racing begins to-morrow afternoon at Charles River Speedway promptly at 2 o'clock. Those having horses scheduled to start who neglect being on hand at the time named will have to go without their sport, as the horses then ready are to be given the word.

This is the result of the meeting of the race committee of the Metropolitan Driving Club brought about through the dallying that has prevailed in the last two matinees, causing the racing to have been continued till after dark for the last events on the programme to be decided. The days are getting shorter now with the consequence that racing must begin earlier in order to finish in a seasonable hour.

The feature race to-morrow is between Dreamwold Poem, Chase, The Aloma and Sid Axworthy. This is bound to be a hot set-to with the winner indoubt till the final heat has been decided. For the fast pacing class Claymos and My Star yoke up for the honors. Nearly seventy horses are entered in the fifteen classe on the programme. The entries:

Class A, pacing—Kiameshs, Thistle, Chester Boy, Black Joe.

Class B, trotting—Susie F., Star King, Hills Boy, Nonpareil, Prince Albert, The Baron.

Class C, trotting—Sir George, Red Bird, Talpa, J. E. C., Olive S.

Class D, trotting—Billy Wilkes, Billy Ross, Zambus, Rose Autograph, Cassandra.

Class E, trotting—Alondra, Tom Phair, Earl King, The Sailorman, Lord Quex.

Class F, trotting—Ross Martin, Bingen Flower, Harry Bingen, John Thomas, Gracie Baron.

Class G, trotting—Sid Axworthy, The Aloma, Dreamwold Poem, Chase.

Class H, pacing—Lanter, Dean Swift, Major P., Edith J., Little S[illegible].

Class I, trotting—[illegible] Wood, Sally March, Alclay H., Martha G., Maud Blend.

Class J, pacing—Colbath, Prince Medium, Red Echo, Go See.

Class K, trotting—Bingen's Pride, Enchantress, Nancy, Patricia, Commodore Forbes.

Class L, pacing—Albert W., Helgamite, Attorney, Miss Eva Wilkes.

Class N, pacing—Mona Maid, Toppan Boy, Nancy Grayson, Alhambra.

Class O, trotting—American Bean, Jim D., Bunker Hill, Baronette.

M'GUIRE WINS MANY RACES

Joe McGuire, the Denver reinsman, who is well known in all harness racing circles through his long connection with George H. Estabrook of that city, whose stable he trained and campaigned on the Great Western and Grand Circuits for several seasons, has been racing a stable through the far northwest this season with success exceeding any that he has ever previously attained during his long career in the sulky.

His string has been made up of but four horses, and up to very recently the quartet had started in 30 races, of which they won nineteen and were placed in all but two.

BURY CASKET WITH FRIEND'S ASHES AT SEA

Strangers Hire Launch for Solemn Service; Say It Was Brookline Man.

POLICE LOOK INTO CASE

What appears to have been a burial at sea of the ashes of a man who had been cremated, although under circumstances so mysterious that the police investigated, was made yesterday in fifty fathoms of water and well outside the three-mile limit off Nahant Point. The officials in the west were very secretive. So far they have completely succeeded in hiding their identity.

George Fitzpatrick, who rents boats at a landing between Long and Central wharves, says two well-dressed men with plenty of money to burn hired him Saturday morning to have a launch ready for them at 11 o'clock yesterday morning to take them out to deep water. He named his price, they paid it and gave no more information. He was certain they knew little or nothing of Boston.

Fitzpatrick told "Charlie" Davis to be on the job and have the launch Alice, one of the best, ready. The two strangers appeared on the minute. One of them carried a package. It was placed in the bottom of the boat, and the men sat silently on either side of it as the launch chugged its way out into the deep water.

Beyond Three-Mile Limit.

"We want to get well outside of the three-mile limit," said the taller of the three men, who were all well dressed.

"And not less than forty fathoms (240 feet) of water," said his companion, who was younger and of slighter build. They spoke in monotones, as if repeating what might have been the language of a will or codicil.

When he was well outside the Graves light, Davis suggested that the point was the one sought.

"Not by any means," said the elder of the two men tersely, "I said well beyond the three-mile limit." Davis sent his boat ahead under full speed until Hardscrabble and did not again speak until beyond the Nahant point.

"You've got fifty fathoms here, 300 feet," he ventured to suggest. "How'll that do? We're outside the three-mile limit by two miles at least," he told the strange passengers. They consulted and agreed that they had gone far enough. By their orders he brought the boat to a stop, although it was a dangerous thing to do, as there was a stiff wind from the northwest.

Consigned to the Sea.

The mysterious package was taken up, and the paper carefully removed. Davis then saw what seemed to be a plain mortuary urn used at crematories. It was cylindrical in shape, of bronze, about ten inches high and one in diameter. Inside Davis could not read it from where he sat. The urn was carefully sealed with four wax seals.

Not a word was spoken but the men handled the urn with reverence and the elder man, who appeared to be the leader, lifted it carefully and leaning over the side of the launch placed it in the water.

For a moment it reeled on the water, the bright sunlight striking on the bronze and making it glisten.

"I don't think it will sink," remarked the younger man anxiously.

As he spoke the casket slowly disappeared beneath the waves and down, slowly down, it descended to the bottom of the sea the glistening bronze sending back a momentary flash of light a fifty feet or more beneath the surface. Then it disappeared.

Obeying Friend's Wish.

Neither of the men spoke during the return trip. Davis believes the men were lawyers, and is confident that if there be mystery in the case that it will never be solved. He is certain that recovery of the casket is impossible in the deep water where it was buried.

Fitzpatrick said one of the men had told him confidentially that they wanted the launch to carry out the last wishes of a friend named Joyce of Brookline, who had died, and whose body by instruction had been cremated.

The only Joyces in Brookline are George F., who lives at No. 104 Walnut street, and Henry in Harvard street. Both said they knew of no death in their families of late years.

Medical Inspector Cutts of Brookline, said he knew of no such body having been cremated, although under the law he inspects all such.

The Short-Weight Man—The Short-Card Man

Two Nice Tails to Two Tickets

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

Mr. Sherman is the tail to the ticket of the Republican machine. Do you know why it is that this gentleman selected by the corrupt element in New York State's Republican party to preside over the United States Senate IS KNOWN EVERYWHERE AS "SHORT-WEIGHT SHERMAN"? If you do not, here are the facts:

Sherman was in Congress. Some of the more decent men working for a Pure Food bill tried to compel manufacturers to stamp on their cans of food the exact weight of the food contained.

That law would have prevented fraud.

"Short-Weight Sherman" fought that law successfully.

Why did he do that? For two reasons:

No. 1—He sympathizes with the short-weight gentry.

No. 2—HE IS HIMSELF A CANNER.

He is in the business of sending out canned foods that weigh less than they are supposed to weigh, and in Congress, according to his nature, he fought the effort to make weights honest.

A nice man to be nominated for Vice-President of the United States, isn't he?

---

You know why they call Mr. Kern "Short-Card Kern"? It's because he is the lawyer of a gambler and gambling-house owner, Tom Taggart. He defended Taggart and the gambling house when both were prosecuted by the State for undermining the morals of children, and on other charges.

Taggart, the gambler, for whom Kern works, is the man that nominated his lawyer for Vice-President. He had the POWER to nominate him, and he did it. You have the power to BEAT him, BY VOTING AGAINST HIM.

You can vote against both of these gentlemen, "Short-Weight Sherman" and "Short-Card Kern," by voting FOR THE CANDIDATES OF THE INDEPENDENCE PARTY.

Says Life, Jews Use Their Brains Instead of Their Muscles

Oh! Indeed? Very Sad. How About YOU?

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

Life is a comic little "comic paper" that has real talent, and that could succeed if it would only come out of the Middle Ages, fight in open fashion and stop silly, fruitless efforts to capitalize race and religious prejudice.

Two men on Life—at LEAST two—are really able—Mitchell and Martin. They ought to realize that this is 1908, and that the honorable Torquemada has been dead and out of fashion for some time.

New York Life announced solemnly and comically its intention of fighting the Jews. Here is a sample of what it calls "fighting."

In speaking of the physical unfitness of the Jews Dr. Blaustein says:

"Of the older Jews this is to a certain extent true—they were compelled to work with their minds to the neglect of their bodies."

And they are still doing it.

They find more profit in trading on the results of other people's labor than in using their own muscles. Does this help to account for the antagonism they seem to have inspired in all communities since history began?

Comic editors ought to know that the gentleman who attacks the Jew because he uses his brain instead of his muscles is rather a foolish person.

Suppose the Jews DO "work with their minds to the neglect of their bodies"?

Would Life prefer to have them work with their bodies to the neglect of their minds?

Did not nearly all the great men in history develop the mind and neglect the body?

Life says of the Jews, "They find more profit in trading on the results of other people's labor than in using their own muscles."

Do Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Martin make THEIR living out of THEIR muscles? Or do they make it by hiring such men as Gibson, and Arthur Young, and Oliver Herford, and Balfour Kerr, and selling the product OF THOSE MEN'S BRAINS, AND MAKING MONEY OUT OF THAT?

Martin and Mitchell have good muscles. But we have not heard that they do the press work, or swing stereotype plates, or work in their mailing room. They let other men use their muscles in those departments. They USE THEIR BRAINS. They prefer to use their brains and make money that way, taking profit out of the muscles and brains of others.

They do just exactly what the Jews do, and the French and the Irish, and the Chinese, and the Scandinavians. All of these people, as soon as they KNOW HOW, USE THEIR BRAINS TO MAKE MONEY OUT OF THE BRAINS AND MUSCLES OF OTHERS.

It happens that the Jews got an early start. They were using their brains and making money that way thirty centuries back. At that time, and for centuries afterward, Mitchell and Martin, and Miller, and Metcalfe also—all able men, all using their brains—were represented by savage ancestors. Those ancestors, practically naked, had their stomachs painted blue with woad. They murdered one another, and occasionally ate one another, as they danced in and out of the swamps over in the Northwest of Europe. THEY USED THEIR MUSCLES THEN NEARLY EXCLUSIVELY. THEY DIDN'T HAVE ANY BRAINS TO USE.

Mitchell and Martin, you and all the rest of us use our brains and leave it to the other to use his muscle. What is the use of getting mad at the Jews simply because they got a few centuries' start of us?

If you have a fight with any particular Jew, FIGHT HIM. Don't fight his mother, or his religion, or his race. That is out of date, and, what is more serious, IT DOESN'T WORK ANYHOW.

LIFE'S RACE

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

As the oldest jockey knows, to his cost,
Full many a well won race is lost
A brief half-length from the wire;
And many a soul that has fought with sin,
And gained each battle, at last gives in
To sudden fierce desire.

And vain seems the effort of spur or whip,
Or the hoarse, hot cry of the pallid lip
When once we have fallen back.
It is better to keep on stirrup and rein
The steady poise and the careful strain
In speeding along life's track.

A watchful eye and a strong, true hand
Will carry us under the judges' stand,
If prayer, too, does its part.
And little by little the struggling soul
Will grow and strengthen and gain control
Over the passionate heart.

A Study in Contrasts

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

TWO women who had passed the three-score-and-five year mark were encountered in one week. Each looked her age, but the difference between the two was as wide as the universe.

One was quietly dressed and her hair pleasingly looped about her sweet and kind face. She spoke softly and only when she felt called upon for speech, and she listened well.

She was tolerant and kind in her view of individuals and epochs.

She did not thrust her age upon the listener, but she spoke of events which had transpired during her lifetime, and made no effort to seem younger than she looked.

She left the impression on those who encountered her of a fine garment which had been folded in sweet lavender.

The other woman was much bewigged and blazed with diamonds. Her face was as hard as flint; her mouth thin and cruel; her eyes cold and critical.

There was not one vestige of youth or the charm of middle age about her personality. She was an old woman, but she talked to women of thirty-five and forty as if she were their contemporary.

She dragged the subject of age into conversation continually, referring to it as something in the remote distance.

She spoke of younger women, especially of those who were distinguished for their charms, with veiled criticisms.

Scandal and unkind gossip she conveyed in adroit language, and always, after she ceased speaking, one felt as when the sting of a chill east wind has blown through an open window.

The young people of the day were characterized as ill-bred and vulgar, and life was referred to as a farce which must be endured, and disillusionment as a certain result of experience.

All that money could bestow had fallen to the lot of this woman during her entire life.

The other had known the need of rigid economy until, in her old age, competence had come to her.

Yet was she not the richer of the two?

Every young girl who reads these lines is facing old age if the angel of death does not call her to finish her career in other realms sooner.

Which type of an old lady seems the most admirable?

If gentle speech and kindly views of life and people, if attractive manners and sympathetic and loving habits of thought are to obtain in old age, they must be practiced in early life. We do not suddenly become transformed.

The critical, fault-finding, carping, severe old woman is a creature to be avoided by men, women and children.

The kindly, patient, companionable old lady is a joy and a comfort to all who know her.

Which type do you think you have begun to emulate?

It is only a little step from youth to maturity.

The Nemesis

By James J. Montague

BRYAN had a little Past he thought had been forgot,
But everywhere he wandered it was Johnnie on the Spot.
When he cried, "I'm conservative! I'm strong for honest men!"
His Past rose up and wildly yelled, "Rah! Rah! Sixteen to one!"

WHEN he said, "Labor ought to have a fair and honest chance,"
The Past bawled, "Yes, but Workingmen are public mendicants!"
When he said, "Down with Trusts that would the populace despoil!"
His Past observed, "Save Haskell and his friend, the Standard Oil!"

WHEN Bryan yodled, "Railroads are a thing that men should spurn,"
His Past remarked unfeelingly, "They're mighty good to Kern!"
When he said, "I have never sought my private purse to fill!"
His Past exclaimed, "Except, of course, from Mr. Bennett's will!"

"I STAND upon my record," often Bryan would declare,
And then his Past would whisper, "Boys, there ain't no record there!"
He dodged about and in and out, and when men saw him last
He still was vainly seeking to escape from little Past.
